

THETA DELTA CHI

After a freshman is pledged at the Theta Deuteron Charge of Theta Delta Chi, he is guided by competent upperclassmen to insure his gaining the most from his four years at M.I.T. From the first, he is strongly encouraged to lead a complete, well-rounded life. With the aid of planned study policies, a national and a local scholarship advisor, he soon develops a serious, healthy attitude towards his work, which enables the house to maintain its high position on the campus. He is also advised to participate in at least one of the numerous extracurricular activities.

Three formal dances a year, combined with the annually successful New Year's Eve celebration and numerous informal dances and parties, supply him with adequate opportunity to relax and enjoy himself and also prevent him from becoming a sallow grind who does not know how to play.

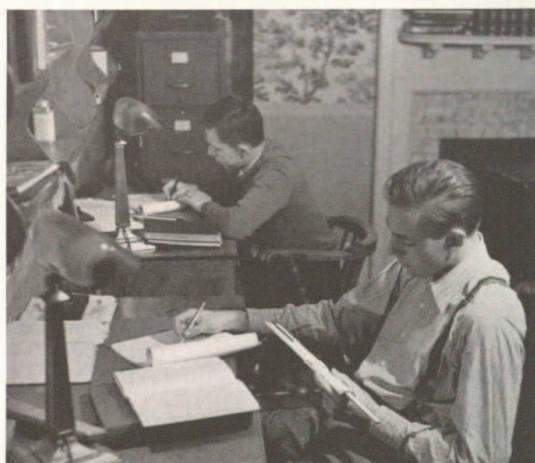

The proof of the fruitful operation of the plan lies in the records of the graduates, all of whom were considerably helped by it.

As in any similar group of young men, we have a representation of assorted hobbies, including photography, radio, record collection (sweet, hot, and symphonic), and even the fabricating of mediaeval weapons. During the winter months, a skiing party is organized almost every weekend to take advantage of the many nearby slopes and trails; while, later in the spring, another group enthusiastically sails around the Basin in the Tech dinghies. Supplementing these recreations, there are the inevitable bridge games, the ping-pong feuds, and the animated discussions about women, politics, music, or any other subject imaginable.
